

Advance planning to support a good death: the need, challenges and solutions

19 October 2017, Basingstoke

This one-day conference for health and social care practitioners in all settings, will focus on the different Advance Care Planning needs, challenges and solutions in different populations and settings. It will share good practice, tools, innovation and showcase how people can work together to plan and deliver care to patients and their families.

The conference includes a performance of the award winning play Homeward Bound, followed by a facilitated discussion exploring some of the issues the performance raises.

Confirmed speakers include:

- Dr Steve Plenderleith, Consultant in Palliative Medicine, the Rowans Hospice
- Dr Lara Alloway, Consultant in Palliative Medicine and Dr Carl Brookes, Consultant Cardiologist, Hampshire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust
- Dr Sarah Russell, Head of Research and Clinical Innovation, Hospice UK

Come and visit our Human Library Treasure Hunt

A Human Library is a place where real people ('Human Book') are on loan to the audience. It is a place to create dialogue about different end of life care initiatives by having a personal conversation with a 'Human Book'.

Join the conversation, challenge those ideas, share that thinking – our 'Human Library' and 'Treasure Hunt' is an opportunity to get up close and personal with projects, initiatives and resources

How does it work?

We'll have up to 10 'Human Books' for you to visit in the 'Human Library' during the day. Each 'Human Book' has a project or initiative to share and discuss with you. Hidden on their stand or in their conversation is the answer to one of your 'Treasure Hunt' quiz questions.

Want to get involved and be a 'Human Book' in our 'Treasure Hunt' and 'Human Library'?

We've a limited number of spaces for "Human Books" to display and discuss your end of life initiatives.

This is your opportunity to showcase your 'Human Book' in an innovative and lively way. If you would like to be a 'Human Book' in our Treasure Hunt contact Ruth Reid, Courses and Conferences Manager at Hospice UK, at conference@hospiceuk.org no later than Friday 22 September. Note: you'll still need to register and pay to attend the conference.

With a special discounted rate of £72 for the day we're aiming to encourage as many health and social care professionals, trustees and volunteers across all settings and from all sectors working in palliative and end of life care to attend.
